If you are looking for a kitesurfing holiday check out these destinations for all levels from absolute beginner to experienced pro

MASTICHARI

Kos, Greece

Due to complicated wind conditions there are only a few kitable spots on the Greek Islands suitable for beginners and intermediates. But Mastichari is just perfect. The little village is contrary to the rest of the island and far removed from mass tourism, you will find several little taverns, typical restaurants and really hospitable locals. The kitesurf spot offers both the professional and novice excellent conditions in which to hone your skills or take to the water for the first time. It is located on a wide sandy beach and offers a 400 metre area for your exclusive use. The season lasts from April until October and is actually longer than one might think. You will also find good windy conditions and nice warm weather during this seven month period.

KAPLPITYIA

Sri Lanka

Everyone is talking at the moment of the massive lagoon in Kalpitiya. There are two seasons (May until October and December until March) with a wind probability that can keep up with Brazil's long summer. As the tide is very low the lagoon is surfable at all times. Windproof, more space than you can imagine and no obstacles turn this spot into something close to perfect. At the end of the day you will be happily enjoying the last sunlight from your balcony with a well deserved apero, totally exhausted from the day. The KiteWorldWide Lagoon Lodge opened its doors in June 2015 and offers comfortable rooms in European standard.

TARIFA

Spain

---

Tarifa is located on the Strait of Gibraltar where the Atlantic and the Mediterranean meet and Europe and Africa are separated by only 14km. Due to the strait and the ocean currents, this area is especially warm which has a jet effect and increases the wind. In Tarifa and the surrounding area, there are many spots with different conditions for all kitesurf levels. The kite metropolis of Europe, if not of the world presents surfer lifestyle, endless party nights in the old town with tapas bars and more. There aren't many kites, who don't fall in love with Tarifa at first sight.

JAMBIANI

Zanzibar

---

Zanzibar known as Spice Island is located in the Indian Ocean and famous for its beautiful beaches and crystal clear waters. This exclusive kitesurf spot is located directly in front of the accommodation lodge on the east coast of Zanzibar in Jambiani. The Red Monkey Lodge is completely renovated and contains nine rooms which are in small bungalows with palm roofs. Coral Rock Hotel is situated at the other side of the bay, and is priced higher with even more comfort and a stunning sea-facing pool. The waters provide perfect conditions for beginners, advanced riders and freestylers. Because of a 2km long sandbank there is a huge lagoon with shallow water for beginners to learn their trade but also for freestylers and advanced riders. The kite season is from June until September and December until March.

ULCINJ

Montenegro

Montenegro can be seen as the new kite hotspot of Europe. The main spot is ideal for beginners and intermediate kitesurfers due to its broad beach, waist deep water and the steady side-onshore wind. From May until September the Albanian Alps in the south cater for super steady thermal winds that will hit the coast in the early afternoon with 18 to 25 knots. As tides don't really exist in Montenegro you can start kiting whenever the wind kicks in. Due to the warm water, wetsuits are not really necessary in the summer.

SICILY

Italy

One of the biggest flat water lagoons in Europe is in Lo Stagnone Marsala! There are two different wind systems, both suitable for kiting, and one of them is practically dedicated to wind seekers with more than 300 windy days per year. Due to the shallow lagoon, you'll always have perfectly flat water, only in the very middle of the lagoon, the conditions might get slightly choppy. You can be sure to always find enough space for practicing your first few metres on the board or some new freestyle moves. The short distance to the African continent is responsible for the warm and pleasant temperatures from March until November.
